

Steve Wilken Press Information

About the Author

Steve Wilken

Steven Wilken served in the US Army during the turbulent years of 1969-1971, including 13 months in stationed at Long Binh, Vietnam. He later graduated from the University of Texas at Arlington with a BA in History and Political Science. Steve wrote the book Why Didn't You Have to go to Vietnam, Daddy? in 2007 when events brought back memories that he no longer wished to suppress. He hopes that telling this story now will help a younger generation understand the forces that shaped their parent's lives. He makes his home in Arlington, Texas.

For More information on Steve Wilken go to...

www.rememberingvietnam.com

www.myspace.com/antiwarveteran

www.starvingwriters.net/stevewilken

Introducing the newest title by Starving Writers Publishing....

WHY DIDN'T YOU HAVE TO GO TO VIETNAM, DADDY?

BY STEVE WILKEN

The Vietnam Story that you've never been told!

THE REVISED EDITION - Why Didn't You Have To Go To Vietnam, Daddy? It's a question children have been asking since the 1960's. Only a true Vietnam War veteran could write such a biting, satirical, revealing look into the everyday lives of soldiers within Vietnam. In the tradition of MASH and Catch 22, Why Didn't You Have To Go To Vietnam, Daddy is brutally honest about the widespread drug use among GI's, and a new insight into the antiwar feelings of many in the US Army. It's a snapshot of America in the late 1960's, the time of the military draft that singled out those sent to Vietnam, and those left behind. It's not like any other book you may have ever read about the Vietnam era, including the cruel twists of fate that awaited many returning veterans. The book is part anti-war novel, part history book, and part biography of the counter culture from the Vietnam Generation. Why Didn't You Have To Go To Vietnam, Daddy is a must-read for all who lived during those tumultuous times, and anyone who wants a better understanding of the Vietnam War's legacy among the baby boomer generation.

~ Available at ~

Amazon.com, Barnes and Noble,
Borders, Books A Million ,
The Starving Writers Bookstore.

Street Date - January 20, 2009

ISBN 978-1-932996-234; Paperback ; 8 x 5 inches.
Distributed through Ingram books and returnable to the publisher.

Find out more about the book by going to RememberingVietnam.com

www.rememberingvietnam.com

EXCERPT FROM THE BOOK - "If you were lucky enough to have been born after about 1955, this must all sound like the ravings of some madman. The draft was ended in 1973, and those turning 18 no longer had to fear being conscripted against their will. They were free to pursue their own dreams, and enjoy the best years of their lives going to college, or hanging out at the drive-in with Peggy Sue. Their lives would never be used by the Government as instruments of war without their consent. They even got the right to vote, something more than half of all those whose names are on that shiny black granite wall in Washington, DC, never had. I was mad all right, if not a madman. Maybe your daddy was one of those with a bumper sticker on his car that said: "America! Love it or leave it!" Well, I had left America for over two years, and America could kiss my ass. You too, daddy."

The Vietnam War was one of the most tragic events in American history and we should never forget what happened. We Should remember those that came back, changed forever and those that never did. We should remember the mistakes that were made and the political climate of deception that divided America. RememberingVietnam.com is dedicated to the men and women that fought during the war and the brave soldiers that never came back. This website is also the home for the Vietnam story you've never been told - Why Didn't You Have To Go To Vietnam, Daddy by Steve Wilken.

